Donors brought their piggy banks

The theme of the Haliburton Hospital Auxiliary's Tag Day was "bring your piggy bank to town" and that is exactly what happened. Almost $6,000 was raised, which was a record amount for all the years the auxiliary has been holding this event. Many donors were happy to give to a hospital where they had such wonderful care, for themselves or a family member. "I had such a great experience – from ER to acute care" was a common comment.

The auxiliary would like to thank all the businesses that allowed them to canvass customers and to an amazing community for their continued support. All money raised goes toward capital purchases for our Haliburton hospital. "We are so fortunate to have such a wonderful, caring community and have so many fabulous volunteers," said Jacqui Clarkson, president of the auxiliary. /Submitted

Head Lake walking route safer with new path

DARREN LUM
County Life Staff

Mark Dennys's morning walk around Head Lake with his wife will be a lot safer and more enjoyable thanks to the collaborative effort of the Rotary Club of Haliburton, the township's parks and recreation department and ArborView Tree Care.

A rough 250-metre dirt path surrounded by trees was transformed by cutting back vegetation, installing drainage features and surface improvements.

The short pathway can be accessed from Harmony Road or from Pine Avenue. With the exception of a few crossings of County Road 21 and Highway 118, pedestrians and cyclists now can avoid the heavily travelled vehicle routes when getting around Head Lake.

Dennys, a Rotarian in Haliburton for 10 years, led the charge to initiate this Rotary Club-funded work on the trail he can see from his house. He wanted to improve the safety conditions and make it more appealing to use.

"We've already seen an increase of traffic. I stopped a few people saying, 'Have you come from the pathway there?' They said, 'yeah.' 'What did you think of the wood chips?' They said they absolutely love it," he said.

When he lived on Vancouver Island, B.C., there was a trail around a lake near his home on Mount Benson. That trail, he remembers, had wood chips and effective drainage and drew runners, walkers and bikers.

The work in Haliburton began June 11 and finished in July and included grading, ditching, the addition of three culverts, gravel fill for low and wet areas, brushing, raking and cleaning out ditches.

It was completed by upwards of 20 Rotarians as well as manager Andrew Wilbee and his staff with the municipality's parks and recreation department, who provided labour and the operation of heavy machinery to remove large rocks and boulders, which had made the path a challenge to walk. Josh Burk of Minden-based ArborView Tree Care supplied wood chips. Special mention goes to Rotarian Ted Brandon's two family members: his wife, Lorry, and their son, Connor, who came every day to help. The trail includes a boulder at each end to address a neighbour's concerns about ATV access.

"Besides making it safer, it's a much more manageable and enjoyable walk through that stretch of the trail," he said.

KATE BUTLER
Haliburton Highlands Museum

I know that I don't need to persuade you, dear readers, about the value of local newspapers in our community, but I have to say, that every time I look at an archival issue of the Echo, I'm always so delighted at what we can glean from it about our community's history.

I just recently dipped into an issue from Aug. 1, 1968. One the front page of the paper, it was announced that the "Pioneer Museum" (as the Haliburton Highlands Museum was known then) would open on Tuesday, Aug. 6, from 1:30 to 5 p.m. and it would be open until Thanksgiving. The hard work of the volunteers, local school teachers and Haliburton Rotary was about to pay off and the museum was opening for its very first day. It makes me smile to think how excited everyone must have been. The museum was "officially" opened in October of that year, but this soft opening was where our institution got its start!

A glance through the rest of this issue of the paper underlines how much our community has changed, but also how much continuity there is to our story.

One of the other headlines that week encouraged people to attend the Rotary Carnival, while an article inside profiled a new instructor who would be teaching watercolour techniques and experimental painting at the Haliburton School of Fine Arts, now known as the Haliburton School of Art + Design. A glance through the ads reveals some businesses which would sound familiar to anyone who knows the county today, but some might simply bring back memories.

For instance, readers were encouraged to come and dance at the (Golden) Slipper where the band "The Incomparable Bad Habits" was playing. If you felt like going to see a movie that week, the new Doris Day film, Where Were You When the Lights Went Out? was playing at the Molou in Haliburton, while Villa Rides! with Yul Brynner and Robert Mitchum was featured at the Beaver in Minden. Real estate prices, meanwhile, look a little different than today – a 200-acre hunt camp for $5,500 or a three bedroom house in Eagle Lake for just $7,200!

Perhaps one of the best ways to look into the area's past though, is the infinitely detailed columns that revealed information from each community about both the major milestones and the daily details in people's lives every week.

If you've enjoyed this glimpse back into our community's recent history, we encourage you to stop by the museum on Aug. 11 (1 to 4 p.m.) when we'll be celebrating the museum's 50th birthday with an afternoon inspired by the 1960s.

There will be fun for the whole family with crafts, treats and activities, as well as the chance to share memories of our community 50 years ago.

Keep your eyes on the museum's social media this month, as we'll be revealing tidbits from our own institutional history too! Do you have some museum memories you'd like to share? Please get in touch: 705-457-2760 or email info@haliburtonhighlandsmuseum.com. We look forward to hearing from you!

Top 10 reasons sandals are great

ONE OF THE unspoken benefits of summer is that it is the season of sandals. There is something truly great about the convenience of slipping into and out of a good pair of sandals. But there are additional benefits as well.

STEVE GALEA
Humour Columnist

Here are my top 10.

1. You can dispel all those rumours about you having 12 toes.
2. Despite what everyone says, they go great with socks.
3. One size fits all, if you don't mind horrible discomfort – and sharing sandals.
4. You can immediately tell if a scorpion has taken refuge in them.
5. They give you a break from repeating over-around-under and through.
6. You can see when someone is wearing lifts.
7. They throw great.
8. More interesting tan lines.
9. When you step in something, you know it.
10. They allow you to pick up things with your toes, without having to take your shoes off.

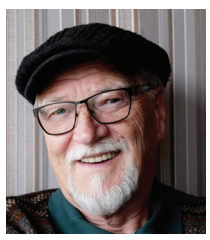
Alexis Mcnab of Raisin the Root readies her booth at the farmers' market. Macnab grew up in Haliburton and has spent time out west and in Costa Rica. Her food is vegan with recipes inspired by the culinary traditions of the world.

A farmers' market vendor profile: Alexis Mcnab

I'VE KNOWN Alexis Mcnab since she was a wee girl and I always looked upon her as the industrious type. Nothing has changed in her adulthood, and I was not all that surprised to see her at the farmers' market in Haliburton, selling her own line of vegan food products, under the name of Raisin the Root.

Alexis has already done more living than most people do in a lifetime. She's a born and bred Haliburtonian who graduated from the local high school before heading out west in her teens. But before that, between the ages of 11 to 18, she was going to Costa Rica every year with her parents. Later on, after her western Canada experiences, she would return to Costa Rica seasonally to run a diving school and eco jungle lodge. She'd spend the summer months in the Highlands where she had a number of jobs including as a server, and working at the CIBC.



GEORGE FARRELL
On Arts/Culture

Alexis still spends winters in Costa Rica, but now it's to oversee her family's retail business. In the summers she's back in the Highlands, helping out by serving at Rhubarb restaurant, with the catering end of things there, as well as serving on Sundays at Boshkung Social, in Minden. All that and she still finds the time to make product for Raisin the Root.

Of her own free will Alexis became a vegetarian at the age of nine and slowly, over the years, graduated to become a full vegan, which means that she no longer consumes anything that is a by-product of animals; like dairy and eggs, for example.

"I really loved animals when I was young," Mcnab said, "and later, as I read more, I realized the impact that raising and processing livestock has on our world. I'm not a pushy vegan, but we all need to understand where our food comes from and the journey that our food takes. North Americans are such mindless consumers."

With that philosophy Alexis Mcnab started to think about her own line of foods, with a goal to prove that "you can adhere to a plant-based, gluten free diet without compromising taste." She studied online with the Academy of Culinary Nutrition to get her Culinary Nutrition Expert certification. This really helped her to hone her cooking, and it gave her the tools to create vibrant, tasty, nutritious food.

Alexis doesn't do it all alone. Her boyfriend Matthew Thompson shares her passion for the kitchen, her interest in foraging for food, and fermentation. He's a traditionally-trained and accredited chef who helps her with the market booth. (This is the first full year at the market for Alexis.) "His knowledge, training, experience and talent take my ideas to a whole new, flavourful level," Mcnab says, "and he's the driving force in our ferments." Thompson is an omnivore, but both he and Mcnab really appreciate vegan foods in their natural state, and neither is interested in, nor supportive of, fake meats and meat alternatives.

So what exactly does Raisin the Root have to offer? The menu is too extensive to include everything but here is a sample: cold spring rolls, tangled thai salad, spiralized zucchini noodles, mung bean vermicelli, sliced bell peppers, organic quinoa salad, sugar-free muffins, oatmeal-chocolate chip cookies, a variety of hummuses, soups, an additional hot dish (vegan ramen, jackfruit curry, pad thai, sambar, red lentil dahl, sweet potato noodles with charred garlic scape pesto, corn-jackfruit gumbo), fermented condiments, traditional sauerkraut, kimchi, curtido (a Salvadorian fermented slaw), traditional ketchup, mushroom ketchup, spicy tomato salsa, a variety of mustards and hot sauces, pestos, chimi-churris, as well as home-brewed, gut-healthy, probiotic, fermented, cold beverages and fruit teas. Phew! And that's just her regular menu. There are various additional items at every market she attends.

Alex likes to stay away from single-use plastic containers, so she encourages people to supply their own re-usable containers, or she supplies them herself, which customers can then return. Aware of the world's plastic pollution problem, Mcnab also substitutes metal, returnable spoons for plastic ones. Mcnab takes private orders, and has done catering, where she utilizes health-unit approved kitchens for preparations. She also offers one-on-one food/nutrition counselling. Did I mention she was industrious?

So, if you're a vegan, or merely want to try some new, tasty dishes, make sure to visit the Raisin the Root booth on your next visit to one of our three farmers' markets; Tuesday in Haliburton, Wednesday in Stanhope, and Saturday in Minden. More information on the Haliburton County Farmers' Market can be found at https://haliburtoncountyfarmersmarket.wordpress.com.

Makerspace changing the way artist creates

JENN WATT
County Life Editor

The Community of Making, offering new tools and knowledge through a network of organizations in Haliburton County, has changed Tiffany Howe's art and the way she creates.

Howe is a Haliburton-based artist who creates her work in acrylic and mixed media, including found objects and recycled denim.

Since she was a teenager she's wanted to make jewelry with "upcycled fabric," or fabric that has been used for a new purpose, but hasn't had the resources available to her.

"For years I couldn't figure out how to afford either the technology, software, materials, tools or time to make the idea reality in a way that was sustainable or fit in with everything else I do," she said.

However, over the last couple of years, the Community of Making has been pulling together the equipment and expertise to help anyone looking to create in a new way. The Centre for Making, based at Haliburton School of Art + Design, has a space filled with machines that can cut, etch, print, embroider and build all sorts of objects. Other equipment is available at Canoe FM and at the Haliburton County Public Library. The library provides a staff person, Noelia Marziali, whose job it is to help people through the process. At the Centre for Making at the college, Scott Walling is available to help with the technology.

Using Adobe Illustrator, Howe edited her drawings so she could use the laser cutter at the Centre for Making to cut her designs from recycled denim.

"I've used the cut designs to make earrings to sell locally and in my Etsy shop," Howe said. You can see her work on Instagram and Facebook @tiffanyhowecreative or online at howecreative.ca.

She was first introduced to the equipment in November of last year and then returned this July to work on her product.

"The process was much less intimidating than I expected. Noelia and Scott both have a relaxed way of teaching about how the software works with the machinery. They guide you through how to achieve the effect you're after without just doing it for you or leaving you on your own. It was the perfect atmosphere for me of feeling nurtured while building my skills and confidence. We edited my designs, adjusted my materials to fit in the laser engraver/cutter machine, and then watched my visions become reality," she said.

She called the Centre for Making "absolutely invaluable" for her.

"It is changing my career, teaching me new skills, and motivating me to keep dreaming up new creations because it has made me feel like it's all possible," she said.

She said there are very few limits to what can be created through the Community of Making – which also includes video editing and audio recording.

Making is not just a purely artistic endeavour. People have been using the space to create labels for their business, embroidering hats with company logos, etching images into coasters and creating gifts for special occasions.

Mike Jaycock, who has used the space to create art, is also planning to use their 3D printer to replace a part on his windshield wiper.

"I have … a rear windshield wiper on one of our cars that doesn't work. I took it apart and it turns out it was one small gear and it's a plastic gear. So, I said to them [at the Centre for Making], if I bought that in do you think we could build that on the 3D printer? They said absolutely. I'm in the process of planning to do that," he said.

The Community of Making is holding "Monday Make Day" each Monday through to the end of August from 10 a.m. to noon.

There is guided use of the equipment, which includes a 3D printer, laser engraver, vinyl cutter, plotter printer, embroidery machine, industrial sewing machine and more.

There is also a pop-up maker hub, featuring introductions to tools and resources, at the Dysart and Minden branches of the library on select Monday and Thursday afternoons. Check social media for details. You can contact Scott Walling at 705-457-1680; or Noelia Marziali at 705-457-2241.

Kids explore Summer Adventure Day Camp

For the past 17 years, Point in Time has hosted the annual Summer Adventure Day Camp in various communities throughout Haliburton County each week. Children participating in this year's camp put on their sea creature faces while gathered for a photo after a day of creating art and playing outdoors./ NATE SMELLE Special To County Life

A few of the kids participating in the camp hold up a banner they painted at camp earlier in the week.

Abagael Mallouk, Ben Sarginson and Inanna Zeukli work on building what was deemed the most creative structure at the Summer Adventure Day Camp held at the Cardiff community centre.

Erin St. Jean shows off her self-portrait and the hat she created at Summer Adventure Day Camp.

While playing parachute, children at the Summer Adventure Day Camp in Cardiff scramble beneath the parachute trying to get away from the others pretending to be sharks. The theme for the camp was life underwater.

The Bloomer Revolution

On Sept. 15, 2018, in celebration of 100 years of Canadian women's federal suffrage, the Minden Hills Cultural Centre will be having a parade and tea.

In advance of this, research will be done on the history leading up to, and following this significant event, which occurred on May 24, 1918. The research includes looking into many of the steps that women took towards the reforms which led not only to the right to vote federally, but also to the changes that took place thereafter.

Like today, one of the methods women used to protest, or show affiliation, was through clothing. In 2018 we have seen women wearing all black to the Golden Globe Awards, in support of the #MeToo/#TimesUp movement.

In the 1840s some women who were part of the first-wave of feminism (which focused largely on legal issues and the right to vote), started wearing baggy pants under a knee-length skirt. This was in response to the "keeping them in their place" attitude that 19th century fashion imposed on women. The style was first created by Amelia Bloomer. Thus the term "bloomers" came to be. It refers to pants cinched at the bottom, worn longer, and underneath a skirt. This outfit did not show more of the body than traditional dresses of the period, but it was still found unacceptable because the trouser shape (in any form) was considered "for men only."

The bloomer style did not last long, and by 1860s not even Amelia was wearing them. However, they did re-appear in women's active wear in the 1880s, fulfilling their purpose of allowing women to participate, with more freedom of movement, in such activities as gymnastics, bicycling, and swimming.

Come and visit "Fashion Dictates" our clothing exhibit. It's located in the Museum at the Minden Hills Cultural Centre, open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday to Saturday.

$450,000 invested in businesses, projects

JENN WATT
County Life Editor

Nearly half a million dollars in funding flowed to Haliburton County businesses and organizations through the Eastern Ontario Development Program this year, according to the Haliburton County Development Corporation.

In a press release issued on July 31, HCDC said 21 small businesses and social enterprises received $450,000 between them. The EODP provides up to 50 per cent of the cost of eligible expenses with the focus of creating new jobs in the community.

"The funding will contribute to business expansion and the creation of new jobs as well as support a wide range of projects focused on innovation, youth wellness, the environment, research and tourism development," said Patti Tallman, executive director of HCDC.

The following businesses received EODP funding this year: ACM Designs, Agnew's General Store Corp., Cottage Care Rentals Inc., Highland Design, Highland Technical, Highlands Opera Studio, Homestead Pottery, MacArt Studios, MacMillan Golf Centre, Outram Tree Solutions, Patient News Publishing, Technicalities Plus, TheOccurence and Yours Outdoors.

The following projects received assistance: culinary tourism development (County of Haliburton); The Centre for Making (Fleming College); Community of Making (Haliburton County Public Library); multi-use trail rehabilitation (Haliburton ATV Association); Head Lake Pedals and Paddles and Explore Our Lakes (Municipality of Dysart et al); youth wellness hub (Point in Time) and Gould's Creek Restoration Project (U-Links Centre for Community Based Research).

Grant funding for youth working on accessibility available

MP Jamie Schmale is calling on youth leaders from Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock who might be interested in making a difference in their community by working with eligible organizations to submit project proposals under the Enabling Accessibility Fund's Youth Innovation Component.

Youth interested in participating are required to identify accessibility barriers in public places or workplaces within their immediate and/or surrounding communities, and seek out interested organizations willing to work with them to develop an EAF accessibility project funding proposal.

Not-for-profit organizations, for profit organizations (with up to 99 full-time equivalent employees), small municipalities (with a population under 125,000), Indigenous organizations (including band councils, tribal councils and self-government entities) and territorial governments are eligible to apply for project funding of up to $10,000.

Interested youth between the ages of 15 and 30 years of age can apply https://www.canada.ca/en/employment-social-development/services/funding/enabling-accessibility-fund-youth-innovation.html.

The call for expressions of interest for youth leaders will close on Sept. 21.

Powerboat action makes waves on Head Lake

SUE TIFFIN
County Life Staff

Speed-loving spectators will have the chance to watch plenty of action on Head Lake on Aug. 18 and 19 when about 70 racers take to the water in hydroplanes and runabouts in races with speeds from 30 miles per hour to 85 miles per hour.

The Toronto Outboard Racing Club is hosting the Haliburton Outboard Powerboat Races, sanctioned by the Canadian Boating Federation, for the fourth year in a row and promise plenty to see, even from the shoreline.

On Aug. 17, a meet and greet for the event will take place at Head Lake Park from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.. Visitors to the event will be able to meet the racers and their crews and get an up-close look at their boats and trailers. A selection of antique boats will be on display, as well.

"You can't touch them, but you can get close enough to look at them," said organizer Barb Hammond. "They're unique boats."

During the races, guests to the event can see the spray of water as boats speed through it, and can see racers that operate the boats from a lay-down position. Winning boats are weighed and inspected, a process that spectators are able to observe as well.

"It's pretty exciting to watch," said Hammond.

Racers are aged seven to 77, and include local racers like Hammond's adult children, as well as visitors from Michigan and New York.

The event is free to onlookers, but raises money for the Haliburton Hospital Auxiliary through a prize raffle, and this year spectators are being asked to remember to bring an item for a food bank donation. Food booths are available, including a booth run by the local Lions Club.

"We appreciate the fact that not everybody likes the noise of it, but the town's been very good and it's good for the community to bring all of these people in and put Haliburton on the map," said Hammond.

The event does make use of the Head Lake public boat launch, which means it is closed to the general public over the weekend, but event sponsor RPM offers their boat launch at 5122 County Road 21 free of charge for those getting their boats into the water on Saturday or Sunday. Youngdale Fuels sponsors the kids categories.

The races will be held on Saturday, Aug. 18 beginning at 10 a.m. and Sunday, Aug. 19 beginning at around 11 a.m. Races run until about 5 p.m. on both days.

"It's a great event, it's free, and everybody can relate to boats," said Hammond.

For more information about the Haliburton Outboard Powerboat Races, visit www.torc.ca.

Study will determine location of 30 beds

Hospitals and Hyland Crest are involved

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

There will be a new study to determine the future of the two local hospitals, Hyland Crest seniors' home and the location of Haliburton County's 30 new long-term care beds.

At a meeting in Dorset last Tuesday, the Haliburton County Development and Planning Committee agreed that the issues surrounding the county's two hospitals, the seniors' home and long-term care should all be tied together under one study.

This study, which should be under way by the end of the summer, will be a joint project of county council, St. Joseph's Hospital and the development and planning committee.

The mandate of the committee, which has met six times since its inaugural meeting May 12, is to implement the recommendations of the Directional Plan for the county's long-term health, housing and social service needs which was completed a year ago.

The 13-member committee is chaired by Times publisher Jack Brezina and includes municipal politicians, health care and social service workers, residents and provincial officials.

Its first two priorities are to determine the best locations for the 30 new beds which the province approved for Haliburton County last year and to oversee a study of Hyland Crest and Minden Hospital.

Last Tuesday was the first time a committee meeting was open to the public. The first six meetings were used to give members an overview of the issues involved.

In his opening statement, Brezina said he is aware that some members are frustrated with the seemingly slow progress so far, but he said the pace of the committee's work will quicken as it begins to make decisions.

The committee broke into two groups to discuss the feasibility study and how to allocate money and beds throughout the county.

The province has committed $2.3 million in capital funding, but the community must contribute one-third of any money spent.

The county has already set aside $266,000, which was supposed to have been used for the 18-bed chronic care addition to the Haliburton Hospital. That money can be used to cover the community's cost of establishing the long-term beds.

The public money raised for the 18-bed addition has now grown to more than $600,000, which is being held in trust by the St. Joseph's Hospital Foundation.

It is unclear whether that money can be used by the committee or not. The committee is planning to meet with the executive director of the foundation this week to find out the status of the money raised by the community.

The discussion on where to locate the beds generated some debate among committee members.

Doug Campbell put forward a proposal that the committee agree, in principal, that the

Minden asked to keep ambulance operations

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Ministry of Health has asked Minden council to retain control of the Haliburton County Ambulance Service for the next two months.

In May, council gave the ministry 90 days notice that it wanted out of the ambulance business, and this Friday was supposed to have been the date to complete the transfer.

But last week the ministry contacted the municipality and asked that it retain control during an interim period so issues arising from the transfer can be resolved.

During last Thursday's council meeting, Reeve Bern Berry hinted at further developments in the negotiations telling councillors he had "surprising news" about the ambulance service.

Details were not revealed however and council discussed the issue in a closed session after the regular council meeting ended.

The on-going negotiations also involve the ambulance employees who are represented by the Ontario Public Service Employees Union.

In an interview on Saturday, union spokesman Ian Douglas called meetings last week with the ministry productive, but would not discuss details.

"We're back discussing a possible solution with the ministry," he said. "We want the best solution for all concerned."

Minden council decided to divest itself of the service because councillors felt ministry funding, which is supposed to cover the entire cost of running the service, did not compensate the township for the time and effort spent on administrating the service.

Because the service covers all of Haliburton County, it was felt that Minden taxpayers should not be subsidizing the cost of operating the service.

Reeve Bern Berry approached the county's management committee about taking over the service, but the committee did not accept the offer.

In the weeks following council's an-

Ministry approval still needed for study of Minden Hospital

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The ministry of health has not yet answered the request from St. Joseph's Hospital to cover the deficits of the Haliburton and Minden Hospitals for the next two years.

This Friday is the deadline imposed by the St. Joseph's board of trustees to get a positive answer from the ministry before taking "drastic action."

In June the hospital announced that the combined operating deficits of the Minden and Haliburton Hospitals would total $175,000 and it would be unable to cover that amount.

It submitted a proposal to have the province cover the deficits for a two year grace period while the amalgamation of the Minden Hospital and Hyland Crest seniors' home is pursued.

Last week, St. Joseph's executive director Frank Lussing said the ministry had not yet responded to the hospital's request except to say they would be back to him about it.

Lussing met with the Haliburton County Planning and Development Committee to discuss the situation and there is an agreement to undertake a joint feasibility study of Hyland Crest and Minden Hospital. The county, which owns the seniors' home, is also going to be asked to participate.

Work has already begun on drafting a request for proposals from consultants interested in doing the feasibility study.

At a meeting of the Twelve Mile Lake and Little Boshkung Property Owners Association on Saturday, Minden Reeve Bern Berry said he believes its possible the Minden Hospital might be closed.

"I feel if the ministry doesn't say okay, I think we are in danger of losing our little hospital in Minden," he said. He encouraged residents to lobby the ministry on behalf of the hospital.

"It might help if you sent a letter to the ministry of health explaining to them how valuable the hospital is," said Berry. "I would appreciate it if you took pen in hand."

The Times will publish next Tuesday

Monday, August 3 is a civic holiday throughout much of Ontario and as a result we will publish a day later next week. The Times will be delivered to stores and post offices on Tuesday morning, and the office will be closed on Monday. The Thursday deadlines for advertising and copy still apply.
